How to read this document

Page 2 sets out the trailing-twelve-month income statement and operating expense detail. Page 3 carries the two underwritings – the property as it actually trades today as a short-term-rental operation, and the same property normalized to the assumptions a multifamily or yield buyer would apply. Page 4 carries the cap-rate reference table, the 2025 appraisals and 2026 assessed value, the financing note, and the full disclosure. Every figure traces to the owner profit-and-loss statement, the June 2025 appraisals, or Dallas County tax records, all of which are available in the deal room.

03 TRAILING TWELVE MONTHS

Income statement summary

Twelve months ended June 30, 2026, from the owner profit-and-loss statement. Ten units.

LINE	ANNUAL	PER UNIT / YEAR	PER UNIT / MONTH
Total revenue	$307,946	$30,795	$2,566
Total operating expenses	($131,102)	($13,110)	($1,093)
Net operating income	$176,844	$17,684	$1,474

Operating expense ratio 42.6%. NOI margin 57.4%. Net operating income is stated before debt service, capital expenditure and any buyer-specific costs.

Operating expense detail

Twelve months ended June 30, 2026. Line items are approximate annual figures drawn from the owner P&L; the residual line reconciles the itemized detail to the audited T12 expense total.

EXPENSE	ANNUAL	PER UNIT	% OF REVENUE
Property taxes	$31,772	$3,177	10.3%
Insurance	$19,970	$1,997	6.5%
Cleaning	$19,788	$1,979	6.4%
Electricity	$13,962	$1,396	4.5%
Natural gas	$9,319	$932	3.0%
Office & software	$9,241	$924	3.0%
Water & trash	$8,741	$874	2.8%
Management	$8,160	$816	2.7%
Pest control	$1,948	$195	0.6%
All other operating expenses	$8,201	$820	2.7%
Total operating expenses	$131,102	$13,110	42.6%

Per-unit figures are annual, across ten units. Percentages are of T12 total revenue of $307,946.

04 TWO UNDERWRITINGS

The same building, underwritten two ways

The left column is what the property actually produced. The right column re-underwrites those same actuals under conventional multifamily-style assumptions: a full third-party management load, hotel occupancy tax applied to every dollar of revenue, replacement reserves, and the 2026 tax bill. Buyers arriving from different asset classes can price from whichever column fits their model.

LINE	STR ACTUALS	MULTIFAMILY-NORMALIZED
Total revenue	$307,946	$307,946
Total operating expenses (T12)	($131,102)	($131,102)
Net operating income, as operated	$176,844	$176,844
NORMALIZATION ADJUSTMENTS
Third-party management at 10% of revenue, net of the $8,160 already carried in T12	–	($22,635)
Hotel occupancy tax at 6%, applied to 100% of revenue	–	($18,477)
Replacement reserves at $250 per unit per year	–	($2,500)
2026 property tax increment at the $1,610,000 assessed value, illustrative ~2.3% combined Dallas rate	–	($5,258)
Net operating income	$176,844	$127,975

Adjustment line items are shown rounded to the dollar; the normalized total is computed on unrounded figures. The hotel occupancy tax adjustment is deliberately conservative: stays of 30 days or longer are exempt from the tax, and a meaningful share of the property's revenue comes from 30-plus-day corporate and medical stays. Applying the tax to 100% of revenue understates normalized NOI accordingly. The 2.3% combined Dallas rate is illustrative; buyers should confirm the applicable rate against current Dallas County records.

If you underwrite the operation

An operator buying a going concern — with the reservation manager, the pricing engine and the cleaning bench in place — is buying the left column. The management line is already carried at $8,160 because the operation is genuinely run at that cost.

If you underwrite the real estate

A yield buyer who intends to hand the property to a third-party manager, reserve for capital, and carry every tax at full rate is buying the right column. It is the more conservative of the two, deliberately so.

05 CAP-RATE REFERENCE

What a price implies

The table below is arithmetic, not an ask. This offering is unpriced. The price points are illustrative only and carry no indication of seller expectation.

ILLUSTRATIVE PRICE POINT	CAP RATE ON STR ACTUALS NOI $176,844	CAP RATE ON NORMALIZED NOI NOI $127,975
$1,800,000	9.82%	7.11%
$2,000,000	8.84%	6.40%
$2,200,000	8.04%	5.82%
$2,400,000	7.37%	5.33%

Cap rate = net operating income ÷ price. Unlevered, before acquisition costs and before any buyer-specific capital plan.

06 THIRD-PARTY MARKS

Appraised and assessed values

REFERENCE	BASIS	VALUE
June 2025 appraisal	Real estate	$2,430,000
June 2025 appraisal	Going concern	$2,770,000
2026 assessment, as notified	Dallas County	$2,016,000
2026 assessment, after appeal	Dallas County	$1,610,000

Both appraisals are available in full in the deal room. An appraised value is a third-party opinion of value, not an asking price. The normalized underwriting on page 3 carries the tax increment at the post-appeal $1,610,000 figure.

07 FINANCING

An institutional lender term sheet has been obtained at 75% LTV, with 80% available at a DSCR of 1.15 or better. Lender name and full terms are available in the deal room. Subject to underwriting and appraisal; this is not a pre-approval or a commitment.
