How to read this document

Page 2 sets out the trailing-twelve-month income statement and operating expense detail. Page 3 restates T12 actuals as the property trades today as a short-term-rental operation, with the full verifiability trail. Page 4 carries the cap-rate reference table, the June 2025 appraisals, the financing note, and the full disclosure. Every figure traces to the owner profit-and-loss statement or the June 2025 appraisals; Dallas County tax records and the full P&L are available in the deal room.

03 TRAILING TWELVE MONTHS

Income statement summary

Twelve months ended July 31, 2026, from the owner profit-and-loss statement. Ten units.

04 THE NUMBERS

The operation's actual numbers, as run today

What the property actually produced over the trailing twelve months, from the owner's P&L, verifiable against reservation-level channel earnings and roughly four years of monthly statements in the deal room. You are buying the income the way it is earned today.

LINE	T12 ACTUALS
Total revenue	$308,561
Total operating expenses (T12)	($130,765)
Net operating income, as operated	$177,796

Operating expenses include property taxes, insurance, utilities, cleaning, management as currently run ($8,160), and software; the full line-item detail is in the deal-room P&L. Hotel occupancy tax is guest-paid on short stays and is not an owner operating expense; stays of 30 days or longer are exempt. 2026 tax records at the post-appeal $1,610,000 assessed value are in the deal room.

The operation transfers whole

The reservation manager, the pricing engine, the cleaning bench, the listings and their review history: a buyer steps into a running system, not a stabilization project.

Verify everything

Reservation-level channel earnings, ~4 years of monthly P&L, both 2025 appraisals, and the obtained lender term sheet are all in the deal room. Audit the numbers before you price them.

05 CAP-RATE REFERENCE

What a price implies

The table below is arithmetic, not an ask. This offering is unpriced. The price points are illustrative only and carry no indication of seller expectation.

ILLUSTRATIVE PRICE POINT	CAP RATE ON T12 ACTUALS NOI $177,796
$2,100,000	8.47%
$2,300,000	7.73%
$2,500,000	7.11%
$2,700,000	6.58%

Cap rate = net operating income ÷ price. Unlevered, before acquisition costs and before any buyer-specific capital plan.

06 THIRD-PARTY MARKS

Appraised values

REFERENCE	BASIS	VALUE
June 2025 appraisal	Real estate	$2,430,000
June 2025 appraisal	Going concern	$2,770,000

Both appraisals are available in full in the deal room. An appraised value is a third-party opinion of value, not an asking price or a guide to seller expectation.

07 FINANCING

An institutional lender term sheet has been obtained at 75% LTV, with 80% available at a DSCR of 1.15 or better. Lender name and full terms are available in the deal room. Subject to underwriting and appraisal; this is not a pre-approval or a commitment.

DISCLOSURE

CityPlace bnb is offered through the owner's listing arrangements; the property is listed with Marcus & Millichap. The owner holds a Texas real estate license.
